Faculty Position Announcement

Position: Full-time Lecturer in Public Health (non-tenure track)

Date of Appointment: August 2020

Background: Baylor University is a private Christian university and a nationally ranked research institution that is consistently listed with highest honors among The Chronicle of Higher Education's "Great Colleges to Work For." Chartered in 1845, Baylor is the oldest continually operating university in Texas. The university provides a vibrant campus community for over 16,000 students from all 50 states and more than 80 countries by blending interdisciplinary research with an international reputation for educational excellence and a faculty commitment to teaching and scholarship. Baylor is actively recruiting new faculty with a strong commitment to the classroom and an equally strong commitment to discovering new knowledge as we pursue our bold vision, Pro Futuris (www.baylor.edu/profuturis/) and academic strategic plan, Illuminate (<https://www.baylor.edu/illuminate/>).

Our Department of Public Health (<https://www.baylor.edu/publichealth/>), accredited by the Council on Education for Public Health, is rapidly growing. We currently offer a Bachelor of Science in Public Health degree and a Master of Public Health degree with two concentrations: Community Health and Epidemiology. The successful applicant will join a strong core of public health faculty engaged in cross-disciplinary partnerships across campus and in local and global settings. We invite you to come discover the vision and excitement at Baylor as we seek to fill this position in the Robbins College of Health and Human Sciences (<https://www.baylor.edu/chhs/>).

Qualifications and Responsibilities: This position is a "non-tenure track" position that will be predominately focused on teaching core undergraduate public health courses in the Bachelor of Science in Public Health program. This person must move to Waco, Texas, and be part of our residential faculty. An earned Master of Public Health degree (or related degree, such as community health, behavioral health science), training/experience in public health, and extensive collegiate teaching experience are required. A commitment/ability to work in multidisciplinary teams will be important. The successful applicant is expected to teach core public health courses such as theory, program planning and implementation, evaluation, and/or global health at the undergraduate level in our public health program; play an essential role in teaching and mentoring our undergraduate public health students; mentor other part-time instructors; engage in the programmatic work and activities of the Baylor Public Health Program; and serve the university and public health profession.

Salary and Review Date: Salary is commensurate with professional experience and qualifications. The review of completed applications will commence on September 16, 2019, and continue until position is filled.

Application: Applicants must electronically submit a formal letter of application (specifically address how you meet qualifications and can fulfill responsibilities); a full curriculum vitae; an unofficial transcript of the master degree (and doctoral degree if applicable); 2 samples of public health work (e.g., grant proposals, programs developed, evaluation reports) or research publications [evidence of actual public health practice preferred]; 3 recommendation letters; and a list of three references (include names, titles, and contact information; references listed may be the authors of the three recommendation letters). All required materials must be submitted as PDF (portable document format) files at the following link: <https://apply.interfolio.com/66843>

A selected pool of candidates will then be asked to complete a brief questionnaire about philosophy compatibility and submit official degree transcripts. Contact Dr. Beth Lanning, Search Committee Chair, (Beth\_Lanning@baylor.edu, 254/710-4027) if you have questions.
